Department of Psychology

The field of psychology is a broad subject, ranging from the study of brain to the study of communication; extending from the study of abnormal behavior to the study of child development. To find professional psychologists in a wide variety of settings; administering tests or doing therapy with patients and industry. It is also proved vital in doing career counseling, team development, personnel selection, or contributing to human factor engineering, nevertheless in all kinds of schools and educational institutions, both in teaching and counseling positions. Working with preschool youngsters or doing basic research in university laboratories and therefore owing to the inevitable need & demand of this discipline, BUITEMS has started four years BS Psychology program.

The undergraduate program of the Department of Psychology in BUITEMS, has been established in 2017 which aims to give students a well-rounded education with a solid grounding in the basic theories, methods and techniques of modern psychology and a broad acquaintance with the various substantive areas of the field. It is designed in a way to equip students with a general background in psychology as well as basic skills in research as to enable them to apply it in a wide variety of contexts. It will also enable them to pursue study at the graduate level for further specialization.

In harmony with the contemporary trends in academia, we adopt a worldwide accepted and proven semester scheme to impart practical knowledge to the students. It will also train them to play an effective role in different organization and to explore the fascinating landscape of the human mind. Moreover, to make students learn to respect the complexities of human behavior and help them to reduce psychological distress and dysfunction.

We designed its curriculum around the foundation of psychological theories and application. The program covers the application of psychological concepts and principles to individual cognitive and emotional functioning.

We intend to establish the smooth & supportive research-oriented environment which will help our students acquire knowledge based on current methods, content areas, theory & research. By combing excellent research & projects with internship and thesis, the majority of the graduates will seamlessly be interested into targeted professional research oriented fields.
